

Urban Engineers

Alan Baxter & Associates are a firm of Designers and Engineers involved in the wider issues of cities and urbanism as well as the design of buildings. The Firm's success comes from its breadth of knowledge, its imaginative ideas and ability to weave these strands together to create valuable holistic solutions.

We are currently looking for Senior Urban Engineers to work on our transport and movement projects. Applicants should have a strong interest in urban design and place making together with experience of contributing transport advice to masterplanning and development projects.

Understanding cities and how their movement patterns best work is one of the great challenges of the 21st century. If you are interested in this wider field as well as delivering the practical solutions please apply with CV and covering letter to:
